I got 1.3M views on a new IG account in 2 weeks. Free app marketing. Full guide.
My first viral post hit 1.3 M views. The account was brand new. I had zero followers, zero budget, zero connections in the niche.After this post all my posts would go viral or at least get thousands of views.I just had to find one viral format and that was it.I needed to make this work to promote my pregnancy app in an organic way. Don't get me wrong ,Im all for creators and running ads but when you are starting in the app space money is limited and back in highschool I remembered i would grow niche pages and do dropshipping (actually sold a lot of products with this) So i was like why not try this with a digital product such as an app.
I'm going to give you the step by step on how you can do it too.
I've done this across multiple niches. It works every time. The move isn't being original , it's recognizing patterns that already convert and translating them into your niche.

GOAL: Find one winning format and repeat it daily and all your posts.After that first viral post ,the others will start to go viral as well.Use this to draw attention and downloads to your app.
Here's exactly what I did step by step starting an IG account from scratch.
STEP 1
Pick one niche and commit to it
Not two. Not "lifestyle." One specific niche with a specific audience who already exists on Instagram.
The more specific, the better. "Fitness" is too broad. "Postpartum fitness for new moms" is a niche. The algorithm doesn't know who to show your content to if you don't tell it.
STEP 2
Set up your page correctly from day one
This part matters more than people think.
Create a fresh account and do not sync your contacts. This stops Instagram from boxing you into your existing social circle and forces the algorithm to push you to cold new audiences instead.
Here is how to turn it off. You can do it two ways:
Inside Instagram
Go to your profile and tap the three lines in the top right
Go to Accounts center
Tap "your info and permissions"
Tap "Upload contacts " and turn it off
From your iPhone Settings
Open iPhone Settings
Scroll down and tap Instagram
Tap Contacts and toggle it off

Next,Your display name is the bold name at the top of your profile and it is what Instagram actually indexes for search. It needs to include your niche keyword. Not just "Jessica" but "Jessica | Fitness Coach" or "Jessica | Postpartum Health." Make your niche clear so Instagram knows exactly who to show you to.
Your bio should be short and precise. One line on what you do, one line on who it is for, and one CTA at the end. No life story. Example: "Helping new moms track their pregnancy journey → Download app below 👇"
Create a logo and 5 highlight covers before you post anything. Use ChatGPT to generate the images or make them in Canva. Name your highlights something relevant to your app (Tips, Reviews, Features, FAQ, or whatever fits your niche). This makes your profile look full and professional from day one. First impressions decide if someone follows you.

STEP 3
Warm up the account before you post anything
Fresh accounts get tested harder by the algorithm. You need to signal to Instagram that you're a real active user before you post anything.
Here's the warmup schedule I use:
Day 1 and 2: Follow 10 to 15 accounts in your niche. Like 20 to 30 posts. Leave 5 genuine comments. Do not post yet.
Day 3 and 4: Like 30 to 40 posts. Comment on 10. Save 10 to 15 posts that are performing well in your niche. Watch Reels all the way through. Completion signals matter.
Day 5 and 6: Same as above. Start saving content that is going viral. Build your reference library. You are looking for formats, hooks, and structures not to copy but to understand what is working.
Day 7: Post your first piece of content.
The saves are the most underrated part of warmup. When you save content Instagram reads your taste and starts showing your future posts to similar audiences.
STEP 4
Find what's already working then add your DNA
Spend time scrolling your niche. Only save posts that already have traction. Build a collection of proven formats.
You are not looking to reinvent anything. You are looking for the pattern.
The hook format that works in almost every niche:
"5 [things / symptoms / signs / reasons] that [outcome]"

→ "5 signs your baby is going through a growth spurt."
→ "5 things nobody tells you about postpartum recovery."
→ "5 reasons your Instagram is not growing."
I adapted this to my pregnancy niche. That post exploded. Then I posted the same hook with different themes every day. Every single one went viral.
TIP: Here is something most people won't tell you: negativity converts.
Posts framed around fear, warnings, or things going wrong consistently outperform positive ones. "5 signs you are doing it right" will always get fewer views than "5 signs something is wrong." That is not manipulation. That is just how human psychology works. People scroll to avoid pain more than they scroll to find inspiration. Use that.

Also anything that reassures people will go VIRALLL..... EX PHOTO BELOW:
Warning hooks: "5 things that are silently killing your app downloads."
Mistake hooks: "The #1 mistake new moms make in the first trimester."
Fear hooks: "Your Instagram account is dying and here is why."
The first two words of your hook decide your reach. Test different openers until you find the one that converts in your niche. When you find it repeat it every single day.

STEP 5-MOST IMPORTANT
The 7 second viral video format
This is the exact format I used to go viral. Every post. 5 minutes to make. Here is how it works.

The goal of the video is not to entertain. It is to make people read the caption and replay the video. Those two actions are what tell the algorithm to push your post to a wider audience.
How to make the video:
If you are not a content creator like me and don't want to film yourself , good news. You don't need to.
Go to Pexels.com or any other website giving free shorts , even Canva has a lot. It is completely free. Search your niche and download short video clips. There is free content for every niche imaginable.
Cut the clip down to exactly 7 seconds. Short is intentional. You want it to end before the person is done reading.
Put your hook as text on screen for the entire 7 seconds. Not a flash. The whole video.
Example: "5 things nobody tells you about the second trimester."
At the last 3 seconds add a second line of text that says "read description below..." This is the move. It pulls people into the caption right as the video ends.
Why this works
The video is 7 seconds. The person is not done reading by the time it ends. So it replays automatically. Now they have watched it twice. Replays are one of the strongest signals you can send the algorithm. More replays equals more reach.
Meanwhile the "read description below" text sends them to the caption. A long caption with real value keeps them on the post even longer. Time spent on post is another signal the algorithm rewards.

The caption
Write all your captions with ChatGPT. Give it your hook and ask it to expand it into a caption with real value (mine are always separated into 5 bullet points since my hook is "5things....). Takes 30 seconds. I did this for every single post.
I used Chatgpt to give me hundreds of hooks and captions for each post, then i would just copy and paste it onto IG.

And as posts become viral you can send it to your ai and tell it to make you more posts similar to that one that went viral.This way you will have a bigger chance of going viral again.

The posting schedule
I started posting twice a day. Each post took me about 5 minutes because the format never changes. Same structure, new hook theme, repeat.
Then I dropped to once a day and the page kept growing organically.

Once your app is live add your CTA everywhere
→In the caption of every post.
→As a small text overlay in the corner of every video.
→In your bio with a direct download link.
You are building an audience around the exact problem your app solves then handing them the solution. That is what free app marketing looks like.
This whole system took me from zero to 1M views in 2 weeks. No budget. No ads. No team.
Try it and drop your results below. I'll answer every question.
